Political Workers Asked to Help on Registration Day

Republican and Democratic National Chairmen Issue Appeal

Washington, May 31.—In a joint statement issued today from their respective party headquarters here, Chairman Wilcox of the Republican National Committee and Chairman McCormick of the Democratic National Committee called on party committeemen and workers in all communities to put their machinery into operation to aid army draft registration officers. The announcement follows:

By the terms of the selective draft act the President has designated June 5 as registration day for the purpose of enrolling those citizens who are of military age and condition. An eligible list of men within certain ages available for service is to be established by this registration, from which it is subsequently proposed to select those who are to bear arms for the United States in the present struggle and those whose proper sphere of duty is along other but no less useful lines. It is of great national importance that this registration should be as complete as possible, in order that the government may be enabled to make proper selection.

The Congressional enactment under which this registration is conducted was supported by members of both houses of Congress, and by both of the great political parties. Party lines were not drawn during the consideration of the great measure, and we believe that these organizations are splendidly equipped for effective work in this direction.

Accordingly we, as chairmen of the national committees of our respective parties, have addressed a communication to officers of state political organizations throughout the country asking them to put into operation the party machinery in their respective districts for the purpose of aiding registration officers in securing complete enrollment of the citizens affected. We have submitted this suggestion to our national organizations in every state, because we believe that these organizations are splendidly equipped for effective work in this direction.

We sincerely hope that all members of our organizations and party workers generally will join with other citizens in this movement to insure the enrollment of every citizen who comes within the provisions of this law and is subject to enrollment.

Plans for Registration Day

Draft Information Offices Open To-day in Assembly Districts

All Needed Data Relative to Conscription Registration Will Be Available at Headquarters in School Buildings

Persons wishing information concerning conscription registration may obtain it from the different Assembly district registration boards, which will have their headquarters in the school buildings listed below. These headquarters will be open to-day, tomorrow and Monday from 4 until 9 p. m. and all day Tuesday, registration day. Here the 6,000 registrars who will serve in the election district registration places will be sworn in. Each headquarters will have maps and other literature and information for the guidance of local officials and the public, and after the close of registration on June 5 each will post a list of the young men of the Assembly district who have registered, that all the neighbors may know who have fulfilled their duty and, more important still, who have not.

The headquarters, which will be continued until further notice as a center of supervision of the work of registration in the Assembly districts, are as follows:

Gen. Crowder Calls Attention to Facts For Registration

Year's Imprisonment for Those Failing to Obey
the Law

Washington, May 31.—Through the Committee on Public Information, General Crowder appealed to the press of the country to-day to give prominent place daily to an outline of the essential facts in regard to the registration process. The statement from the committee outlines the facts for which publicity of the widest sort is desired as follows:

"Who must register: All male persons (citizens or alien) born between the sixth day of June, 1886, and the fifth day of June, 1896, both dates inclusive, except:

"Members of any duly organized force (military or naval) subject to be called, ordered or drafted into military or naval service of the United States, including all officers and enlisted men of the regular army, Regular Army Reserve, Officers' Reserve Corps, Enlisted Men's Reserve Corps, National Guard and National Guard Reserve recognized by Militia Bureau, the navy, the Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Naval Militia, Naval Reserve force, Marine Corps Reserve, and

"Where: In your home precinct.

"How: Go in person June 5 to the registration place of your home precinct. If you expect to be absent from home June 5, go at once to the clerk of the county where you now happen to be, or if in a city of 20,000 or over, to the City Clerk, and follow his instructions. If sick, send a competent friend. The clerk may deputize him to prepare your card.

"Penalty for not registering: Liability to a year's imprisonment, then enforced registration."

Register by June 25
Or State Will Act

Reports on preparations for the state military census, to be taken from June 11 to 25, were made yesterday at a meeting of the 261 Broadway.

E. P. Goodrich, director of the work, heard the reports of the assistant directors and made the suggestions he considered necessary.

Mr. Goodrich announced that registration will be voluntary on the part of all persons between the ages of sixteen and fifty until June 21, when notices will be sent out calling attention to the law requiring registration. Persons who have not registered by the morning of June 25 will be summoned to appear and do so.

There will be more than 3,000 places of registration, many of them in the schools, which will be open from 3 p. m. until 9 p. m. All other places will be open from 7 a. m. until 9 p. m.

More than 15,000 persons will be engaged without pay in the work, for which volunteers are needed. Meetings will be held during the next week to instruct them in their duties.

Evening at the beach.

In modest, small checks, or a little more pronounced without being vociferous.

U. S. May Extend Conscription to Citizens Abroad

War Department Takes Up
Phase of Americans Now in Foreign Lands

Await Crowder Ruling
Advocate General to Decide
Whether Citizenship Privilege Carries Military Duty

Washington, May 31.—While the legal machinery of the government was operating to-day to stamp out agitation against the army draft the War Department took up another phase of the matter dealing with the status of Americans now in foreign countries.

Secretary Baker called upon Brigadier General Crowder, judge advocate general and provost marshal general of the army, for an opinion as to the effect of the new law upon Americans of military age residing abroad. Department officials generally have presumed that the privilege of citizenship would carry with them a duty for military service not affected by foreign residence, but no formal ruling will be made until the opinion of General Crowder has been received. The question involves to some degree the specific terms of the extradition treaties between the United States and other countries.

Many Americans of military age now abroad have been eager to enroll. Registration cards have been furnished to every American embassy, legation or consulate, and diplomatic and consular officials have been authorized to act as registration agents.

See Evasion of Law
Meantime the Department of Justice is proceeding on the theory that the departure from American soil of any citizen subject to the draft is an evasion of the law. It was revealed to-day that steps already had been taken to prevent such departures and that attempts at this form of evasion would be met by vigorous measures.

Department officials also made it clear that they would back up to the full extent of their authority the efforts of local officials in the various communities to put a quick end to agitation against the draft. The arrests made during the day throughout the country were in accordance with instructions sent from Washington, directing Federal agents everywhere to take prompt legal steps against any one seeking to influence eligibles to refuse to register.

Discussing reports that many young men were leaving the country to avoid military service, Secretary Baker said to-day he did not believe "any substantial number of Americans" would take that course. He added that the law was of such vigor that it would be found that any evasion gained in this way was only temporary.

Drop Exemption Questions
Another aspect of military registration came up during the day when registration officials throughout the country were informed that answers would not be required to the question on the registration cards as to whether the individual claims exemption and, if so, on what grounds. The department has reached the conclusion that no man should be required to claim exemption. There are many who do not care to do so, and under the new ruling none will be required to state his position until he is summoned for actual service and comes up before an exemption board.

Pacifists Scattered
By Fire Engines

Barred from Hall in Brooklyn,
Attempt to Hold Street
Meeting Fails

Several thousand earnest pacifists gathered in front of New Plaza Hall, Grand and Havemeyer streets, Brooklyn, last night, with the avowed purpose of denouncing the conscription law, once they had gained entrance to the building.

This was refused, them, and in the strenuous hour that followed they argued with the proprietor, Abraham Miller, argued with the police and had just started a street meeting, when engines on the way to a fire charged through them and broke up the affair.

When the first of the protesters, who were chiefly members of the 4th and 14th Assembly district socialist organizations, arrived at the hall last night they found the doors locked. Miller, when interviewed, attempted to evade responsibility by saying that the police had forbidden a meeting. Samuel Orner, one of the scheduled speakers, thereupon called up Police Headquarters and was told that this was not true.

Miller still refused to allow the pacifists to enter the hall, declaring he was afraid of trouble. The crowd then marched to the corner of First and Havemeyer streets, mounted a speaker on a soap box and began an open air meeting. This was halted by Lieutenant Evans, of Inspector Boettler's squad, who said that it was illegal to speak, except under the American flag.

At length a small meeting was obtained and tackled to the soap box, and Herman Messer had just launched forth upon a denunciation of the conscription law when a fire alarm was turned in further down on First Street. The crowd scattered, as the apparatus came down upon them, and never re-gathered about the soap box.

Saks Suits for Men at $20

Are the safest clothes investment in New York

YOU cannot get more style nor better tailoring for your money than in Saks' suits for men at $20. We know how they are tailored and of what they are made—we make them ourselves. The majority of suits sold in New York are aliens. They are the product of an unknown, sold by middlemen, who subsist on second profits.

Saks suits at $20 are in a class by themselves. They are ready-for-service suits with all the original touches of made-to-order garments. They yield more value to the square inch than any other $20 clothes. And they are shown to-day in a variety of woollens so varied and beautiful as to defy detailed description.

Opposition to Draft Measure in Canada Believed Political

Agitation Strongest in Quebec; Rioting Continues in Montreal

Montreal, May 31.—The opposition to the proposed conscription measure continues, and the nightly rioting, chiefly of yelling and window smashing, has not let up. Advances here are that opposition is strong throughout Quebec province.

In Sherbrooke large posters protesting against conscription were posted. An English youth who tried to tear one down was severely beaten. Here in Montreal, a returned soldier, Private H. Franklin, who tried to seize an inflammatory transparency carried by a marcher in one of the anti-conscription parades, was so severely beaten that he was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital.

Mayor Martin is the chief speaker at most of the nightly and daily anti-conscription meetings. His latest utterance follows:

"We should do all that is humanly possible for the Empire. It is our duty to do all that is possible, but that does not mean that Premier Borden has the right to engage the people of Canada without their consent. The Premier is acting by way of brutal force."

Most of the opponents want the conscription measure submitted to a referendum. Others are against it unequivocally. Of the latter class are the Hebrew students of McGill University, and their association has put itself on record against it. The resolution passed by the Hebrew Students' Association declares that as "conscientious objectors" they must do all in their power to prevent the measure being put into effect.

Lieutenant Colonel P. E. Blondin, the Postmaster General, after a tour of Quebec, which he has just completed, said that the anti-conscription movement in the province is practically a political move.

"If both parties agree on conscription," he said, "there will be very little trouble in enforcing it in the Province of Quebec. I am not worried over that agitation down there. It is almost all political. Of course, the people of Quebec are active politicians, and that is why the demonstrations are successful."

As soon as the people of Quebec understand that both parties are behind conscription and united to carry the war to a successful issue, there will be very little opposition to compulsory military service. The hearts of the people of Quebec are all right. They only need to have the situation explained to them."

U. S. and Canadian Guards Watch Border To Catch "Slackers"

Rouse's Point, N. Y., May 31.—United States and Canadian immigration officials are working hand in hand and no man of military age crosses the frontier from either side until he has satisfied the agents of both governments as to his mission. Americans between the ages of twenty-one and thirty are barred unless they can give proper excuses. The Canadian military age is from twenty to forty-five.

Many have been turned back on the American side since the draft registration began, but United States Inspector James Yale asserts, and a bit proudly, too, that he doubts if there was a "slacker" in the lot. Most of them simply neglected to bring along the proper credentials. Men must show their birth certificates or draft registration papers or other means of identification, besides giving a clear account of their business.

About 100 a day cross at Rouse's Point, which vies with Ogdensburg as the principal point of entry into Canada from New York State. Francis Marchand, the Canadian agent, has had his hands full since the draft agitation has spread through Canada. Two Canadians were arrested on the Dominion side to-day.

Canadian officials make out two cards for men crossing the border in either direction, one of which is kept by the traveler and the other forwarded to Ottawa. The agents of both governments have enlisted the aid of all border farmers. Every resident is a veritable Secret Service agent, and the inhabitants on both sides of the line vie with one another to be the first to give the news of an attempt to cross the border without visiting the immigration men.
